COMING TO THE DAVIS.

The Trail of the Lonesome Pine. In The Trail of the Lonesome Pine, which is adapted from the novel of the same name, by John Fox, Jr., Eugene Walter is said to have found a most suitable character for Isabelle Lowe, who will appear at the Davis theatre barefooted, wondering-eyed creature of memory and dreams known and loved by a million book lovers, heroine of the story and play. The part of the half savage, uniutored child of the Cumberland mountains is one that suits Isabelle Lowe as though made

POETRY

We know not what it means, dear, this

But this we know: Our loved and dead,
if they should come this day—
Should come and ask us, "What is life"—
not one of us could say.
Life is a mystery as deep as ever death
can be;
Yet oh, how dear it is to us, this life
live and see!

Then might they say—these vanished ones—and biessed is the thought. "So death is sweet to us, beloved! though we may show you naught. We may not to the quick reveal the mystery of death—Ye cannot tell us, if ye would, the mystery of breath."

We know not what it is, dear, this sleep so deep and still;
The folded hands, the awful calm, the cheek so pale and chill;
The lids that will not lift again, though we may call and call;
The strange, white solitude of peace that settles over all.

This desolate heart-pain;
This dread to take our daily way, and walk in it again;
